

Dear FCC,

I am writting to express my opposition the continuing aggregation of media power into fewer hands. While this may help the bottom lines of major corporations, it limits real journalist coverage of issues important to the American public. If anything, a more diverse and less concentrated media industry is more desirable to the health of our republic. Please consider the implications of allowing more control of media resources to fall into fewer hands, and do not allow the FCC rules to change making this easier. Thank you.

Sincerely, Jason McCauley
